BOARD OF DIRECTORS DISCUSSES GHI'S ROLE AS A COOPERATIVE

by Sid Kastner

The meeting of the Board of Directors of Greenbelt Homes, Inc., on Thursday night, Jan. 14, was the occasion for a vigorous and interesting debate on GHI's role as a cooperative, triggered by Director John O'Reilly's discussion of a Twin Pines suggestion for dealing with the resale problem. Among other items: the audit committee submitted a letter to the board urging a closer relationship between management and members in matters of home improvements; the manager's proposal to construct a boat and trailer parking lot was approved; and director Stephen Polaschik exhibited a photographic record of trash-littered areas in our fair city.

The Twin Pines cooperative plan, according to O'Reilly, would enable a member to purchase equity in a home for only (for example) $300 down; on moving out, the member would receive just the original $300. Eventually, a future owner would not have to pay any equity and the cooperative would assume ownership of the house. The program could be offered voluntarily. O'Reilly qualified his support of this plan with the view that the usual refinancing program should be available also, so that members would be free to choose for themselves.

Director Ed Burgoon was pessimistic that such a program would work anywhere but in New York City, where a serious shortage of homes existed. Director Nat Shinderman felt that people who own their own homes have more incentive to improve their property. O'Reilly countered by saying he believed Washington was "a great city for renters," and that it wasn't necessarily true that people who rent don't have pride in the house they live in. An interesting discussion followed, centered around the question of just how much of a cooperative should GHI be to fill the needs of its members.

Audit Committee

The audit committee's letter urged the establishment of "policies and programs which will encourage members to utilize the assistance of management in planning additions and other changes to their units." It suggested several steps toward this goal, including measures to enforce existing regulations. Burgoon found the language strong and felt that some of the concepts were just not feasible; he saw a contradiction, also, in that the letter implied GHI was mainly regulatory and also wanted more regulations enforced. Audit committee chairman David Lange explained that the letter was not meant to be critical but was written to put forth ideas not all of which might prove workable. He gave the committee's view that a trial program of the kind suggested would be helpful, before the Long-Range Committee acted. O'Reilly thought that the committee's suggestions went well beyond the scope of things presently planned, and should be submitted to an appropriate sub-committee of the Long-Range Planning Committee. His motion to this effect was passed.

Open House

The Member Relations Committee, under the chairmanship of director Seay, reported on the December Open House. Director Norman Weyel estimated that about 70 people attended, despite the bad weather (and the Browns-Colts football game). Miss Katherine Keene was credited with an excellent decorating job; she remarked that four hours, however, seemed rather long for an affair of this sort, especially from the viewpoint of anyone who came to see specific persons. A motion was passed commending Mr. Weyel and Miss Keene for their work on the event.

Trailer Park

Of interest, next, to the boat- and trailer-owners among GHI members, was the proposal by manager

Breashears and his staff to build a parking lot for (initially 10 boats) or trailers. The total cost, including lighting and fencing, was estimated at around $1,500. Each owner would be given a key to the main gate, and the yearly rate would be $36 (this figure is not yet definite). O'Reilly and Burgoon noted that matters such as insurance, zoning regulations and licensing should be looked into. From the audience, Seymour Kaplan brought out, during the discussion of this item, that a local Parking Cooperative had been formed which was ready to undertake the operation of such a parking lot; the board's feeling however was that the lot's use should be limited to GHI members, since it was designed to solve a GHI problem. This condition was included in a motion by director Gerald Gough to accept the man-

City To Get $150,000 For Warehouse Site

by Charles T. McDonald

In the early part of the regular meeting of city council on Monday January 18, city manager James K. Giese reported that the Court had ruled on the condemnation suit of the city warehouse property by the State Roads Commission and that Greenbelt will receive $150,000 and be given two years to vacate, as compared with the $92,000 and immediate vacation originally offered by SRC. This money will be needed to defray expenses involved in relocating the warehouses. Council discussed a report of the Advisory Planning Board on alternative sites for this relocation, and then instructed the city manager to investigate the possibility of acquiring the Greenbelt Armory property.

City Manager Giese called attention to the Jaeger High-Rise Apartment zoning case that will be tried before the Court of Appeals on Thursday, Jan. 21. The city solicitor had indicated that taking an appeal by opponents to a zoning request is an infrequent circumstance and there are only a limited number of cases to offer as a precedent.

Other Business

The 1965 legislative program of the Maryland Municipal League and the separate Prince Georges Chapter Municipal League program was discussed and the manager was requested to notify Prince Georges

Greenbelt Asks New Library From County's Bond Issue

by David Stern

Councilman Clifford Simonson asked that planning funds for a new Greenbelt Library be included in a million-dollar library bond issue at a public hearing of the Prince Georges County delegation to the Maryland Assembly on Wednesday, Jan. 13. Simonson was the spokesman for a group of library-minded Greenbelters that included Mayor Edgar Smith, the Rev. Kenneth Wyatt (Community Church), Leo Gerton (Greenbelt Library Association), Al Herling (Prince Georges Friends of the Library Association), Gordon Allen, and others. The hearing lasted very late, and the library bond issue did not come to the floor until 2 a. m.

The hearing, last of three in which citizens and organizations were allowed to present their wishes and demands before the delegation prior to the annual session of the Assembly, began shortly after 8 p.m. Greenbelt's presentation was preceded by that of Robert B. Mathias, representing the County Commissioners (and by many, many others!), who requested a million-dollar bond issue for library expansion. (Miss Elizabeth B. Hage, Director of the Prince Georges County Memorial Library system, later explained that about $950,000 of that sum would be allocated for construction of a regional library in the southern part of the county, while the remainder would be spent on preliminary planning of a library in Bel Air.) Mathias also recommended that one of the County Commissioners should act as Library Board chairman, in order to tighten cooperation between the Library Board and the county government. Commissioner Gladys N. Spellman, whose duties at present include liaison with the Library Board, supported this view.

Simonson Presents Greenbelt's Views

Simonson, acting as Greenbelt's spokesman, began by endorsing the bond issue requested by the Library Board and the commissioners. He then expressed disappointment at finding that Greenbelt had been left out of the expansion plan financed by the bond issue. He continued by tracing the development of Greenbelt's library, its crowded condition and the wide support it enjoys among local residents, citing as an example the activities of the Greenbelt Library Association.

After this Simonson reviewed the past negotiations between the city and the library board concerning construction of a new library in Greenbelt: from the MNCPPC 1959 Master Plan for the county library system, which called for a new library by 1962, through early 1963 when Greenbelt was second on the priority list (after Laurel), to the present situation in which neither the preliminary Master Plan for Area 13 nor the library board have any immediate plans for such a library. He noted that the recent rapid increase in Greenbelt's population — about 5000 since 1960 — made the issue even more urgent and asked that part of the money raised be used for preliminary planning of Greenbelt's library, in a manner similar to that envisioned for Bel Air. Simonson also presented petitions to the delegates, written by the Greenbelt Library Association and St. Hugh's Home and School Association.

Questions Asked

Simonson described the reception and questions by the county delegates as "sympathetic and friendly." Several members of the delegation asked Miss Hage for her views of the problem. She replied that the planning staff capacity of Prince Georges Memorial Library is too limited at present to undertake planning of a new library in Greenbelt.

Al Herling later took the stand to oppose the stronger control of the library board by the commissioners, as proposed by Mathias.

City Council Stiffens Attitude Towards Beltway Plaza Light

by Al Skolnik

Reacting to proposals that the city of Greenbelt share in the cost of installing traffic signals at the Beltway Plaza Shopping Center, city manager James K. Giese told council at its regular meeting last Monday that it was his "firm opinion that the city has no obligation or responsibility—legal, moral, or otherwise—to provide a traffic signal at Greenbelt Road and Cunningham Drive."

He stated that the installation of traffic signals falls outside the scope of city governmental functions, since no city streets are involved. He explained that "Greenbelt Rd. is a highway controlled and regulated by the State. Cunningham Drive is a street controlled and regulated by Berwyn

No Authority — No Obligation

Giese declared that the city has no authority to regulate traffic on State highways, on streets outside the corporate limits and within another city, or on private drives. He concluded that "if the city lacks authority, it must follow that it also lacks obligation."

Giese also answered the argument that Beltway Plaza pays a large amount of taxes. "The city provides certain services," he said, "which are well-defined in the budget. To pay for these services, it is authorized to levy a tax against all real property . . . It is not intended that any parcel of property should receive services equal to the amount of taxes it pays."

Touching on the question of who should pay for the lights, Giese noted that just as the city requires developers to pay for the cost of constructing new city streets of benefit to themselves, so does the State Roads Commission have the right to expect developers to pay for new signals.

Solicitor's Report

The council also heard a report from its city solicitor Thomas R. Brooks regarding the city's powers in the dispute. Brooks advised that the city has no authority to ban left hand turns out of Beltway Plaza without the permission of the State Roads Commission, since Greenbelt Rd. is a State highway. He also advised council that a writ of mandamus requiring the SRC to install a traffic light would not be proper since such a writ cannot be used to compel performance of a power, the exercise of which is discretionary.

Mayor Edgar Smith revealed that discussions have begun between the developer of Beltway Plaza — First National Realty Corporation — and the city with respect to the light. Council indicated that it would consider at its next meeting action requesting the SRC to ban left-hand turns, unless favorable progress is reported on reaching a settlement.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL LOCATION IS SET

The Board of Education of Prince Georges County has decided on a location for the new Greenbelt Senior High School, and at a meeting on Jan. 12 authorized its attorneys to start condemnation proceedings against the owner of the land, according to a statement by Thomas Gwynn, Assistant Superintendent of the county school system.

The site for the new school is privately owned and is a 30-acre plot behind the American Legion Post on Greenbelt Road, fronting on the new Capital Beltway. Presumably a new access road or roads will have to be built in order to reach the school. It is hoped that the school, which will have a capacity of 1800 students, can be finished by the fall of 1966.

Gwynn stated that there are no plans in the immediate future for constructing either a junior high school or an elementary school in Greenbelt. The present junior high school is not overcrowded, and there is land already set aside for an elementary school at Springhill Lake for whenever the need arises.

Previously announced plans for a new elementary school to be constructed by the fall of 1965 at Springhill Lake have been dropped, since the school enrollment there remains relatively low.

Portable classrooms will be used at the existing schools until the growth of the school-age population here warrants the construction of a new school.

Wanted: A Library Site

If prospects for a new Greenbelt library are brightening, as Councilman Clifford Simonson stated at last Monday's city council meeting, thanks are due to the Greenbelters who attended a public hearing of the Prince Georges County Delegation on Jan. 13. The agenda was crowded, and the hearing lasted late; some of the Greenbelt group were obliged to leave. A stalwart few remained past 2 a. m., however, to hear Simonson present the Greenbelt case to a sympathetic delegation.

We hope planning funds for a Greenbelt branch will be found this year. Simultaneously, we urge Greenbelt to donate a suitable site. This has been attempted before, without success; but it must be tried again. Every branch library thus far constructed in the county stands on land donated by communities or individuals. A gift of land has been already made for the proposed new Bel Air branch, planning funds for which have been included in this year's million-dollar bond issue. The donation of a suitable site in Greenbelt will bring closer to reality the long-hoped-for new library.

Letters to the Editor

Private vs Public Interest

The editorial in the January 14, 1965, issue of the News Review poses the question—Is it too much to expect that our leaders in public and private life grow up with our rapidly growing community? There can be no doubt that those with private interests in the growth of Greenbelt are already mature—mature in the determination and employment of their legal rights and responsibilities. And, this is the way we must judge our own maturity, for no matter how much we may talk and act in terms of human lives, they will talk and act only in reference to legal obligations.

All too often in its past dealing with the private developers who have devoured our green areas for their profit, the city has demonstrated its own lack of political maturity, failing until it was too late to grasp the finite legal loophole upon which the welfare of all of the people of Greenbelt has hinged.

Let us be adult. First National Realty Corporation (Beltway Plaza) does pay taxes to the city; so do we all, but it also derives not inconsiderable benefits from the city and the people thereof. What family among us has not made the cash registers jingle at Kleins or one of the other business places in the Plaza?

If one recalls the debate over rezoning of the Triangle for a Korvette-oriented shopping center, it may be recalled that an irate Mr. Brown queried in a letter to this paper whether the supporters of the Korvette petition were implying that he was building a "second-rate" shopping center. Witness the deplorable condition of the Plaza's entrance to the A & P, or consider the pall of clay dust which clung to everything there this past summer, or view the parking area in the older section, or examine the grandiose plans for the Plaza against the present achievements, or review the unconscionable delay over the installation and maintenance of the badly-needed traffic light, and the answer may well appear to you to be no—no, not even "second-rate."

Lamp Posts for The Birds

With the subject of lighting so prevalent in the News Review lately, I have decided to add my two cents' worth.

It seems to me that the most busily travelled part of town happens to be the most poorly lighted section of Greenbelt.

Take a look, next time you are at the Greenbelt Shopping Center. The street lights provided on Centerway are reminiscent of the old fashioned gas-lights of yesteryear. And the only thing they seem good for are birds: they build their nests in them.

According to the information I have, an illuminating engineer from PEPCO has been asked to estimate the cost of replacing these inadequate lights. He has given an estimate of $1,000 for each light to be replaced, if PEPCO does it.

Now it happens that the good city of Greenbelt has installed excellent new lighting in the parking areas of the Center and the cost to the city was only $500 per light.

Get with it, City Council. If you are at all interested in keeping the Center alive (and the businessmen are taxpayers), do something.

Rita S. Fisher

Asks Examination of Rumors

For background of decisions to be made as to a library branch in the Greenbelt area, may I offer these comments in addition to Mrs. Sucher's description in your issue of January 14? At the Jan. 18 City Council meeting a widespread rumor was again aired, and vigorously rebutted, that any library site in "old" Greenbelt would be inaccessible. Unless some responsible person can be found to support that rumor with some reasonable detail, it should be dismissed with contempt.

It seems to be alleged also that Greenbelt should vie with other localities in a sort of a "bribe" to the county library authority in the shape of some large valuable "free" site. Dubious enough even for some recently partly formed or prospective communities, this consideration ignores the very substantial contribution already made by Greenbelt in critical formative years. Continuing from then, with little offset or compensation, Greenbelt's own library was absorbed.

Greenbelters also seem to be asked to swallow, and even to applaud, without examination, pretenses that some undetermined "nearby" location, at some indefinite future time, will be "better" or just as good or substantially the same as their present service.

One may grant that there is nothing sacred about continuing library branch service in "old" Greenbelt, provided that sound comparison indicates an alternative reasonably acceptable site.

Junior Highlights

by Claire Brooks

Next year the core curriculum will not be offered in eighth grade as it has been since Greenbelt Junior High School has been in existence. Instead, English, social studies (United States History), and science will be offered as separate courses. Core will be retained in the 7th grade, however.

Beginning with the graduating class of 1969, students will be required to have eighteen credits, instead of sixteen, to receive their diplomas. The current Greenbelt Junior High School eighth grade will be the first class affected by the new regulations. Included in these new requirements are three, instead of two, years of a foreign language for students wishing an academic diploma.

Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell, president of the Greater Washington Area television station, WETA - Channel 26, spoke to the Parent-Teacher Association, Tuesday, Jan. 12. She told the group that the educational television association has applied for a second channel—Channel 50. While the present Channel 26 has material primarily for elementary schools during the day, Channel 50 would have material largely for secondary schools. During the evening, this channel could offer courses for adults according to present plans.

HIGHWAY GAMES I'VE KNOWN

Who hasn't been appalled by the mounting traffic accident rate? Which of us hasn't wondered what was the cause behind it all? Well, the headshrinkers have finally come out with it: traffic accidents, they say, are mostly caused by traffic games. Basically, they claim, driving is a rather boring business, so that drivers tend to enliven it with a little incidental and occasionally accidental hanky-panky.

Come to think of it, ain't it the truth? Didn't drag racing, now an - er - respectable racetrack sport, start with drivers for whom the simple stop-and-start at a traffic light wasn't exciting enough? Haven't we all played, at one time or another, "What's my Lane?", "They Shall Not Pass" or "Box-in the Caddy"? Isn't playing such games the reason why teen-age drivers, whose reflexes and eyes are so much faster than those of us old-timers, are considered such poor insurance risks? One really marvels why it took the experts so long to discover the plainly obvious.

Now that we know the reason, what can be done about it? Forbid those games? That would be fighting human nature itself. No, what's needed is something to take their place, something legal and safe but just as exciting - new games for old "good" games to replace the "bad" ones. Let me explain.

An easy "good" game for beginners is "Obeying Traffic Laws With a Flourish". Say you are coming home from work on Southway - it's late in the afternoon, the sun is low and behind you are several drivers who are just as much in a hurry to get home as you are. In front of you is the familiar 4-way stop. If you were playing the old, bad game, you would now come to a "rolling stop" which isn't a stop at all, peek around the hedge of 16 Ridge to see whether John Law is on the beat, then press the gas and dart across. How old-fashioned! How illegal! How crude! Now, the new way: you come to what looks like a rolling stop, but s-l-o-w-l-y. Look in the mirror - that driver behind you, who planned to roll through the stop sign just as you would have done, is now quite close, moving very slowly and waiting for you to pick up speed again. Instead, you come to a complete stop and so does he, and so does the guy behind him and so do the four cars behind him. See how easily you've got all the drivers behind you hopping mad by just obeying the law?

A more advanced game, the "Glenn Dale Roadblock", is played during the NASA evening rush hour (unfortunately, new highway construction will soon end the game at that particular location, but variations of it can be played on many other roads). At this time, hundreds of cars leave the Space Flight Center heading towards Greenbelt, most of the drivers keeping to the right-hand lane since they know that Glenn Dale road's 4 lanes soon narrow to 2. Most of the drivers do - that is, not counting some smart-aleck speedsters who pass everyone in the left lane and then push their way into the head of the line.

Very well. You pull out into the left lane and slow down, matching speed with your buddy who was behind you in line and who'll let you get in again when you have to. It doesn't take long before one of those hot-rodgers comes to a surprised halt behind you: Beep, Beep, BEEEEEP! It's now your turn to look in the mirror and shrug, meaning: "Wha do you want of me?" In reply, he swerves to out-flank you, but you've been watching in the mirror and merely roll a few feet to the left, blocking him cold. Ah, he tries to pass you on the grass median strip! You dart 30 feet forward, leaving him the choice of running smack into the DO NOT PASS sign or meekly falling back in line. See how simple it is?

By now the idea should be clear: while driving, instead of getting your fun from breaking the law, get it by aggravating everyone else in a perfectly legal manner. Do your legal 25 m.p.h. where no one can pass. Blink your parking lights to make the fellow who's too close behind think you're applying the brakes. Stick to it and soon driving will become twice as safe and ten times as maddening.

CITY WAREHOUSE, from p. 1 legislators of city council's approval of both programs. The P. G. Chapter program encourages greater participation by municipalities in zoning and rezoning hearings and court cases.

In one of its reports the APB opposed granting a rezoning petition by the developers of Lakeside North, who had requested higher density R-30 zoning for part of their property, now zoned R-18. City Council instructed the manager to notify the Park and Planning Commission and the county commissioners of their objection to the rezoning.

City Council indicated its willingness to accept the undeveloped land in the Woodland Hills subdivision on the condition recommended by the APB, that it be used for park purposes.

Coin-Operated Facilities

An ordinance was introduced to regulate the hours of operating coin-operated facilities in Greenbelt. This measure was initiated to prevent such establishments as the laundromat from becoming places of loitering after midnight, and would require the presence of an attendant if the establishment was left open from midnight to 6 a.m.

An interesting technical discussion arose among several members of council when councilman Bernstein offered a motion to suspend council rules and submit for second reading the appropriation of $150,000 already approved for improvement of the swimming pool. Councilman Simonson voted "No," and as four votes are required to suspend rules, the motion failed. Councilman Hoff was absent. This meant that the ordinance would be carried over until the next meeting and allocation of the money would have to be delayed until that time. Mayor Smith indicated that a special meeting might be called for Thursday evening or next Monday evening. The meeting adjourned at the early hour of 10:35 p.m., a new record.

C.Y.O. MARCH OF DIMES

Representatives from the Catholic Youth Organization of Greenbelt will be soliciting contributions this Saturday, Jan. 23, at Klein's Department Store. Donors will receive booster buttons and balloons. The C.Y.O. volunteers are: Page Smith; Sue Snowden; Marcy Loutsch; and Patti Holbrook, the National Chapter Teen Chairman for the National March of Dimes Teen-Young Adult Program.

Volunteers March Friday

Many men will wear badges proclaiming "Tonight I am a Mother" on Friday, Jan. 29, when the annual MOTHERS MARCH of the National Foundation-March of Dimes takes place in the Washington area. Volunteers of both sexes will call on their neighbors for contributions to support the Foundation's birth defects research program. Over a quarter of a million children are born in the United States with serious birth defects each year.

Children's Art Displayed

An exhibition of art work by children at the North End School is currently on display at Twin Pines, where it will remain until the end of January. Approximately 50 items, including watercolors, collages, and torn-paper constructions, were selected from a larger group of art works that had been displayed at the school for a week. All grades are represented. The works were mounted and hung by members of the Greenbelt Arts and Crafts Guild.

DOG OBEDIENCE COURSE

Boys and girls in Prince Georges County again have the opportunity to enroll in the Dog Training Classes sponsored by the 4-H Clubs of Prince Georges County. Classes will begin January 30, at 10 a.m., and 11 a.m. at the Quonset Hut, University of Maryland, and continue every Saturday morning for sixteen weeks. Classes will be offered in both basic dog training and advanced dog training. The course is available to ALL boys and girls in Prince Georges County between the ages of 9 and 15. A $2.00 registration fee is required when you sign in at the first course session.

For beginners, the course will include training, handling, and showing the dog, plus feeding, grooming, and caring for him when he is ill. The advanced course will include off-lead work, jumping, retrieving, out-of-sight stays, and other challenging commands.

For more information call the 4-H Club Office, Ma. 7-3000, ext. 228. Those boys and girls wishing to enroll should send a card with the following information to 4-H Club Office, P. O. Box 518, Upper Marlboro, Maryland 20870: Name, mailing address, age, phone number, your dog's breed, sex, age, and if you have had prior training experience. Telephone registrations will also be taken.

National Merit Scholarship

All 1966 graduates of High Point Senior High School who wish to enter the 1965-66 National Merit Scholarship competition should register now at the school office, Allan I. Chotiner, principal, announced today. The National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test will be given in the school at 9 a.m., Tuesday March 9.

Students who will complete secondary school in 1966 and enter college in the same calendar year are eligible for scholarship consideration in the 1965-66 Merit Program. Merit Scholarships are four-year awards. The extent of a winner's financial need determines the amount of his stipend.

To receive consideration, the student must take the test when it is offered in his school. A student's performance on the qualifying test also provides him with information that is useful in career planning or in selecting courses in high school and college.

Bingo Profits Lynch Family

Profits for this week's Bingo at the Greenbelt Fire House on Friday night, Jan. 22, are being donated to the Lynch family of Plateau Place to help pay the medical expenses incurred when their two young sons were burned by boiling hot coffee during the Thanksgiving holiday.

A special film for children will be shown during the Bingo game, so that parents can bring their youngsters.

DISTRICT ARTISTS SHOW AT KLEIN'S

"The World of Washington Art," an exhibition of the works of 17 leading local artists at S. Klein's, Greenbelt, opened on Monday and will run through Feb. 13.

The exhibition includes paintings, sculpture, prints, drawing, ceramics, and photography. The following artists are represented:

Samuel Bookatz, Harold Bright, George de Vincent, Robert F. Gates, Teruo Hara, Harold Isen, Jacob Kainen, Richard LaFean, Leonard Maurer, Ed McGowan, Harvey Moore, Jack Perlmutter, Alexander Russo, S. M. Schonbrunn, Douglas H. Teller, James Twitty, and Malcolm Wright.

"We realize art exhibitions by retailers are not unique," said Henry Wolfgang, Managing Director of S. Klein's, "but we feel 'The World of Washington Art' is different. Public display of their works give the artists an opportunity for mass exposure. We anticipate that over a quarter of a million people will view their works. It also gives the public an opportunity to view art they might not otherwise see. And, unlike most exhibitions of this type, all proceeds from sales will be turned over to the artists by S. Klein's."

Hoffman-Hendrix

Mr. and Mrs. J. Richard Hoffman of 114 Northway, announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Kaye to Vance Leroy Hendrix, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Hendrix of Jefferson City, Tennessee. Miss Hoffman attended Temple School of Business and is employed at the Graduate School of the University of Maryland. Her fiancé is a senior at the University of Tennessee.

G.H.I. from p. 1

ager's proposal, which was passed. The parking lot will be located adjacent to the GHI office buildings on Hamilton Place. Interested boat owners and trailer owners may contact Breashears (phone 474-6162).

Awards

Shinderman, speaking for the Personnel Committee, endorsed the manager's recommendations that awards be given to several employees for outstanding services. $50 awards were recommended for Messrs. Conway, Henson, and Miller (respectively GHI plumber, electrician, and automotive mechanic), and an extra one-step salary increase to maintenance supervisor David Kane. A letter of commendation to Mrs. Brubaker, for her good work, was also endorsed. O'Reilly's motion to accept these recommendations was passed unanimously by the board.

Other Matters

Polaschik's graphic photographs of litter on streets and playgrounds, that he had taken "on a sunny August Sunday afternoon," were passed among the board members. The pictures showed "parked trash," "discarded linoleum waiting for a bus," and a "colorful cardboard arrangement." They evoked comments that residents could certainly be doing better about cleaning up.

The matter of what happened to the $100 given by GHI to the city, to defray the costs of Mr. Avrutis' court appeal on the Jaeger tract, was brought up by director Velma Chapman. Breashears noted that legally the city could not pay this money directly to Avrutis. O'Reilly moved to contribute $100 directly to Avrutis, to aid in his court appeal. Shinderman felt that though he was in sympathy with this proposal, the principle was in doubt. Gough spoke in favor of it as furthering the general aims of GHI and its residents.

On the vote, O'Reilly's motion passed.

A welcome note was provided by Breashears announcement that GHI will receive some sizable cash dividends, every few years, from Southern States Corporation (a fuel oil supplier). These somewhat unexpected payments are of the order of a thousand dollars.

Arts and Crafts Guild

Members and friends of the Arts and Crafts Guild are invited to a meeting at the Youth Center next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. A critique of members' work is scheduled, followed by a discussion of plans for the coming month.

Greenbelt artist Jack Dillinger, who was among the moving forces in the original formation of the Guild, surprised members by appearing to conduct their bi-weekly critique several days ago.

Jim Forbes has been providing the club with guidance for the past few months. He and Dillinger are close friends and associates, and they have offered to share the role of guiding the Guild by giving alternate critique periods.

Free Test for Your Soil

If you were embarrassed last summer by a scrawny, unsightly lawn, a soil test now can be the key to a lush green landscape and a tickled pink homeowner next spring.

This test will show the amounts and kinds of lime and fertilizer needed for your lawn and is offered as a free service to Maryland residents by the University of Maryland Soil Testing Laboratory in College Park.

For more details on taking soil samples, as well as to obtain mailing kits, contact the county's Cooperative Extension Service office at 627-3000, ext. 227.

League of Women Voters

Have you felt the need for a round-up discussion of the many recent changes and developments in the organization and operation of the county government? On Tuesday evening, Jan. 26 at 8:15 p.m. at the Pepsi-Cola Building in Chevy Chase (just east of Kenilworth ave.), Dr. Thomas C. Kelly of 51-E Ridge rd., Administrative Assistant to the County Commissioners, will address a General Membership Meeting on "Political and Administrative Evolution in Prince Georges County."

VFD Stands by at Inauguration

The Greenbelt Fire Dept. & Rescue Squad participated in a small way in the Inauguration Day proceedings. At the request of the management of Union Station, the Rescue Squad sent a fully manned ambulance to the railroad station to assist in rendering first-aid and medical care to the thousands of visitors entering the District of Columbia by train.

Deputy Chief George Clinedinst supervised the operation, ably assisted by Captain of Rescue E. Varda and other members of the Squad.

The Greenbelt Squad was specifically asked for because of a similar service rendered in the past for Union Station; the officials there were so impressed by the ability and demeanor of these men that they made a point of asking for them again this year.

Arts and Crafts

Every Monday, Tuesday and Thursday at 3:30 p.m., you can hear the children's excited chatter as they turn popsicle sticks into treasure chests, loopers into colorful potholders, and make flowers out of paper and plaster. If you have a youngster interested in these things, let him come down to the Youth Center. The cost is only for materials used.

Ladies Sports 'n Shorts

Many of the Greenbelt ladies meet at the Youth Center on Tuesday nights at 8 p.m. to unwind a bit from their busy week. Why don't you join them? Spend an evening doing a few exercises, play a game of volleyball, basketball or ping pong, maybe even roller skate. Try it once, you'll come back.

Poetry

The 4th, 5th and 6th Grade Poetry Hour will meet at the Center School Library Friday, Jan. 22 at 4 p.m.

The Boys' "A" League games Sunday, found the Blue Devils winning over the Eagles in a tight game of 58-53. Frank Milasi, on the Terps played with a bruised knee and managed to score 14 points and pulled down a large number of rebounds, but it just wasn't enough. The Terps lost to the Owls 71-31. In this tight league, the Owls, Eagles and Blue Devils are tying for first place with 3 wins, 2 losses each. The Terps are 1 for 4.

The Hawks, Boys' "B" League, took the Warriors 38-18 and the Lakers went over the Royals 64-41. Gibson scored 49 points for the Lakers. This game put the Lakers in first place with four wins, one loss. The Hawks are second with three wins, two losses.

In the Men's "B" League Monday nights, the Bullets took the Lakers 79-65. This puts the Bullets in first place in the league, with the Lakers second. The Hawks took a much needed game from the Celtics by three points. Score: 50-47.

Men's "A" League, teams from the county, are still playing four games every Wednesday night beginning at 6:45 p.m. Schedule for Wednesday, Jan. 27: 1st game, Charlestown vs. G.P.O.; 2nd game, J.E.D. vs. Superior Millwork; 3rd game, N.S.A. vs. American Finance and 4th game, N.A.S.A. vs. Temple Cleaners
